Natural Assets Resource Initiative Full Day Workshop

October 4th from 9:00 AM - 4:00 PM

Lunch and refreshments provided

Natural assets like grasslands, forests and wetlands are part of our core infrastructure system, delivering essential services and many benefits to communities. Yet many local governments don't explicitly protect and manage natural assets for all the services they provide, which may expose them to significant costs and risks, especially in a changing climate. Natural asset management is a proactive approach to infrastructure planning and investment decision making that levels the playing field for nature. Join this full day, applied workshop to learn how to build considerations for nature into land use plans, policies and investments.

In person in Calgary, with option for virtual participation for the morning portion only.
